Introduction

With space for 50 readers to sit at a time, the Prasanta Chandra Mahalanobis Mahavidyalaya Central Library is located on the first floor of the college's main building. The library's collection of text and reference books has grown significantly, and its vast collection of over 21,000 volumes perfectly meets the diverse needs of students and teachers alike. Every year, a new batch of books is added to the collection. There is one Central Library and Sixteen Seminar Libraries (also known as Departmental Libraries) in the P.C.M. Mahavidyalaya Library system. In addition to lending out books, the library offers a reading area for instructors and students, reprographic services when needed, access to e-learning materials, and a career advisory section with study guides for competitive exams. Additionally, the family of Prof. (Dr.) Purnendu Basu, the first vice-chancellor (academic) of the University of Calcutta, offered a small collection of old and rare books (30 books) to it. Inside the library, efforts are made to preserve a serene and quiet study environment. The library offers its patrons free Wi-Fi and open access. For security purposes, the library uses CCTV surveillance.
